NARROW GAUGE RAILROADS.—The subject of narrow-gauge railways is one of the most interesting ones now before the public, for if the plan succeeds as well here as it has done in Europe it will undoubtedly carry railroad facilities to many localities which would otherwise be deprived of them for years. The experiment is being practically tested, and several roads of three feet gauge are now in course of construction, the most important of which is from Fredericksburg, belonging to R. T. Bush, the Denver and Rio Grande Road, a branch of New York, containing 1,100 acres, has been of the Denver Pacific. This Company is now having four passenger and two baggage cars Y., for $9,000.
